Equal Employment Opportunity/Unlawful Harassment

University of Colorado Medicine is dedicated to the principles of equal employment opportunity. We prohibit unlawful discrimination against applicants or employees on the basis of age 40 and over, race, sex, color, religion, national origin, disability, genetic information, military or veteran status, or any other applicable status protected by state or local law. This prohibition includes unlawful harassment based on any of these protected classes. Unlawful harassment includes verbal or physical conduct which has the purpose or effect of substantially interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment. This policy applies to all employees, including managers, supervisors, co-workers, and non-employees such as customers, clients, vendors, consultants, etc.

University of Colorado Medicine will make reasonable accommodation for qualified individuals with known disabilities and employees whose work requirements interfere with a religious belief unless doing so would result in an undue hardship to University of Colorado Medicine or cause direct threat to health or safety.

Employees have the right to be free from discriminatory or unfair employment practices because of pregnancy, a health condition related to pregnancy, or the physical recovery from childbirth.

Employees who are otherwise qualified for a position may request a reasonable accommodation related to pregnancy, a health condition related to pregnancy or the physical recovery from childbirth. If an employee requests an accommodation, University of Colorado Medicine will engage in a timely, good-faith, and interactive process with the employee to determine whether there is an effective, reasonable accommodation that will enable the employee to perform the essential functions of her position. A reasonable accommodation will be provided unless it imposes an undue hardship on University of Colorado Medicine's business operations.

University of Colorado Medicine may require that an employee provide a note from her health care provider detailing the medical advisability of the reasonable accommodation. Employees who have questions about this policy or who wish to request a reasonable accommodation under this policy should contact their Human Resources representative.

University of Colorado Medicine will not deny employment opportunities or retaliate against an employee because of an employee's request for a reasonable accommodation related to pregnancy, a health condition related to pregnancy, or the physical recovery from childbirth. An employee will not be required to take leave or accept an accommodation that is unnecessary for the employee to perform the essential functions of the job

In support of our equal employment opportunity principle, University of Colorado Medicine has developed written affirmative action plans for women, minorities, individuals with disabilities, and covered veterans. University of Colorado Medicine's EEO/AA coordinator is Kate Bisping, Human Resources Manager, at the facility located at 13199 E. Montview Blvd., Aurora, Colorado. She is responsible for compliance with state and federal EEO laws and affirmative action regulations. She is also responsible for implementing University of Colorado Medicine's affirmative action plan, including equal employment practices, monitoring, and internal reporting. If you believe you have not been treated in accordance with this policy, please contact the EEO Officer. Our plan for Veterans and the Disabled is available to you in her office during regular office hours or by appointment. All employees and applicants for employment are protected, by both University of Colorado Medicine's policy and equal employment opportunity/affirmative action regulations and law, from coercion, intimidation, interference, or discrimination for filing a complaint or assisting in an investigation.

- Such conduct has the purpose or effect of substantially interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment.

All employees are expected to conduct themselves in a professional and businesslike manner at all times. Conduct which may violate this policy includes, but is not limited to, sexually implicit or explicit communications whether in:

- Written form, such as cartoons, posters, calendars, notes, letters, e-mails.

However, employees who have access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of their essential job functions cannot disclose the pay of other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to compensation information, unless the disclosure is (a) in response to a formal complaint or charge, (b) in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or (c) consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

Complaint Procedure

If you believe there has been a violation of the EEO policy or harassment based on the protected classes listed above, including sexual harassment, please use the following complaint procedure. University of Colorado Medicine expects employees to make a timely complaint to enable the company to investigate and correct any behavior that may be in violation of this policy.

Problem Resolution Procedure

University of Colorado Medicine provides employees with the opportunity to communicate directly with their Supervisors, Managers and Human Resources. Two-way communication between employees and management is necessary to maintain productive relationships. No matter how good communication systems may be, problems and complaints sometimes arise.

Employees are encouraged to use the following procedure:

1. Under normal conditions, if an employee has a work problem, question or complaint, he or she is encouraged to discuss the situation with his or her immediate Supervisor or Manager within 3-5 days, or in an otherwise timely manner. The Supervisor or Manager will investigate and try to resolve the problem and communicate a decision or answer to the employee. The simplest, quickest and most satisfactory solution will often be reached at this level.
2. If the discussion with the Supervisor or Manager does not answer the question or resolve the matter, the employee then may present his or her complaint to the department head (director, VP, DFA, etc.).
3. Should further resolution be required, University of Colorado Medicine's Chief Operating Officer or Executive Director will make the final determination. This process will be facilitated through Human Resources.

If the issue personally involves the Supervisor or Manager with whom the employee would ordinarily discuss a problem, he or she may bypass that individual and proceed to the next person in authority. At any time, the employee may seek the advice and guidance of Human Resources.

Management decisions on problems or complaints will not be precedent-setting or binding.

Medical Leave (Not FMLA Eligible)

Employees who have not worked 12 months and/or 1,250 hours in the 12 months preceding the need for leave are not eligible for leave under FMLA. Those employees may be provided a medical leave of absence to be used in a block of time, in limited circumstances. Such a leave would include time off for an employee's illness, pregnancy-related disability, or an employee's injury, whether on or off the job.

For a medical leave to be granted, the following conditions must be met:

- The employee notifies Human Resources as soon as possible of the need for medical leave.
- The employee submits to Human Resources a written statement from a medical provider outlining the reason for leave and the estimated time needed. (University of Colorado Medicine may require the employee to obtain an opinion from a company-selected medical provider selected.)
- Approvals are obtained from Human Resources prior to the leave.
- All available sick leave and earned vacation are used at the beginning of the leave of absence. Medical leave (non-FMLA) runs concurrently with the receipt of vacation, sick leave, short-term disability, and workers' compensation, whenever applicable.

Medical leaves (non-FMLA), will generally be limited to no longer than six calendar weeks. An employee who is ready to return to work from leave should present a medical provider's statement indicating ability to return to work. If an employee is unable to return to work at the end of medical leave (including FMLA), the employee may be entitled to additional accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act or other law. The employee must supply sufficient information from their medical provider indicating that he or she has a covered disability and when the employee will be able to return to work with or without reasonable accommodation. Any accommodation must not result in undue hardship to the employer. Potential accommodations will be determined in an interactive process between the employee and University of Colorado Medicine Human Resources.

Family and Medical Leave Act (FMLA)

University of Colorado Medicine provides up to 12 weeks of unpaid, job-protected leave to eligible employees for the following reasons:

- Incapacity due to pregnancy, prenatal medical care, or child birth.
- To care for the employee’s child after birth, or placement for adoption or foster care.
- To care for the employee’s spouse/RDP, son or daughter, or parent, who has a serious health condition.
- Serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform the employee’s job.

Military Family Leave Entitlements

Eligible employees with a spouse/RDP, son, daughter, or parent on active duty or called to active duty status in the Armed Forces, National Guard, or Reserves may use their 12-week leave entitlement to address certain qualifying exigencies. Qualifying exigencies may include attending certain military events, arranging for alternative childcare, addressing certain financial and legal arrangements, attending certain counseling sessions, and attending post-deployment reintegration briefings.

FMLA also includes a special leave entitlement that permits eligible employees to take up to 26 weeks of leave to care for a covered service member during a single 12-month period. A covered service member is: (1) a current member of the Armed Forces, including a member of the National Guard or Reserves, who is undergoing medical treatment, recuperation or therapy, is otherwise in outpatient status, or is otherwise on the temporary disability retired list, for a serious injury or illness*; or (2) a veteran who was discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable at any time during the five-year period prior to the first date the eligible employee takes FMLA leave to care for the covered veteran, and who is undergoing medical treatment, recuperation, or therapy for a serious injury or illness.*

*The FMLA definitions of “serious injury or illness” for current service members and veterans are distinct from the FMLA definition of “serious health condition.”

Benefits and Protections

During FMLA leave, University of Colorado Medicine maintains the employee’s health coverage under any group health plan on the same terms as if the employee had continued to work. Employees must continue to pay their portion of any insurance premium while on leave. If the employee is able but does not return to work after the expiration of the leave, the employee will be required to reimburse University of Colorado Medicine for payment of insurance premiums during leave.

Upon return from FMLA leave, most employees are restored to their original or equivalent positions with equivalent pay, benefits, and other employment terms. Certain highly compensated employees (key employees) may have limited reinstatement rights.

Use of FMLA leave cannot result in the loss of any employment benefit that accrued prior to the start of an employee's leave.

Eligibility Requirements

Employees are eligible if they have worked for University of Colorado Medicine for at least 12 months, for 1,250 hours over the previous 12 months, and if they work at a work site with at least 50 employees within 75 miles.

Definition of Serious Health Condition

A serious health condition is an illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves either an overnight stay in a medical care facility, or continuing treatment by a health care provider for a condition that either prevents the employee from performing the functions of the employee's job, or prevents a qualified family member from participating in school or other daily activities.

Subject to certain conditions, the continuing treatment requirement may be met by a period of incapacity of more than three consecutive full calendar days combined with at least two visits to a health care provider or one visit and a regimen of continuing treatment, or incapacity due to pregnancy, or incapacity due to a chronic condition. Other conditions may meet the definition of continuing treatment.

Use of Leave

The maximum time allowed for FMLA leave is either 12 weeks in the 12-month period as defined by University of Colorado Medicine, or 26 weeks as explained above. University of Colorado Medicine uses a "rolling" 12-month period, measured backward from the date an employee uses any FMLA leave.

An employee does not need to use this leave entitlement in one block. Leave can be taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule when medically necessary. Employees must make reasonable efforts to schedule leave for planned medical treatment so as not to unduly disrupt the Company's operations. Leave due to qualifying exigencies may also be taken on an intermittent basis.

Employees taking intermittent or reduced schedule leave based on planned medical treatment and those taking intermittent or reduced schedule family leave with University of Colorado Medicine's agreement may be required to temporarily transfer to another job with equivalent pay and benefits that better accommodates that type of leave.

Substitution of Paid Leave for Unpaid Leave

University of Colorado Medicine requires employees to use accrued paid leave while taking FMLA leave. Paid leave used at the same time as FMLA leave must be taken in compliance with University of Colorado Medicine's normal paid leave policies. FMLA leave is without pay when paid leave benefits are exhausted.

Employee Responsibilities

Employees must provide 30 days advance notice of the need to take FMLA leave when the need is foreseeable. When 30 days' notice is not possible, the employee must provide notice as soon as practicable and generally must comply with University of Colorado Medicine's normal call-in procedures.

Employees must provide sufficient information for University of Colorado Medicine to determine if the leave may qualify for FMLA protection and the anticipated timing and duration of the leave. Sufficient information may include that the employee is unable to perform job functions; the family member is unable to perform daily activities; the need for hospitalization or continuing treatment by a health care provider, or circumstances supporting the need for military family leave. Employees also must inform University of Colorado Medicine if the requested leave is for a reason for which FMLA leave was previously taken or certified.

Employees also may be required to provide a certification and periodic recertification supporting the need for leave. University of Colorado Medicine may require second and third medical opinions at University of Colorado Medicine's expense. Documentation confirming family relationship, adoption, or foster care may be required. If notification and appropriate certification are not provided in a timely manner, approval for leave may be denied. Continued absence after denial of leave may result in disciplinary action in accordance with applicable attendance guideline.

Employees on leave must contact their Supervisor/Manager at least two days before their first day of return.

University of Colorado Medicine's Responsibilities

University of Colorado Medicine will inform employees requesting leave whether they are eligible under FMLA. If they are, the notice will specify any additional information required as well as the employees' rights and responsibilities. If they are not eligible, University of Colorado Medicine will provide a reason for the ineligibility.

University of Colorado Medicine will inform employees if leave will be designated as FMLA-protected and the amount of leave counted against the employee's leave entitlement. If University of Colorado Medicine determines that the leave is not FMLA-protected, University of Colorado Medicine will notify the employee.

Unlawful Acts

FMLA makes it unlawful for University of Colorado Medicine to:

- Interfere with, restrain, or deny the exercise of any right provided under FMLA.
- Discharge or discriminate against any person for opposing any practice made unlawful by FMLA or for involvement in any proceeding under or relating to FMLA.

Enforcement

An employee may file a complaint with the U.S. Department of Labor or may bring a private lawsuit against University of Colorado Medicine.

FMLA does not affect any federal or state law prohibiting discrimination, or supersede any state or local law or collective bargaining agreement which provides greater family or medical leave rights.

Timesheets

Non-exempt employees must list hours for each shift, including both time worked and time off. Timesheets must be completed and authorized for the employee's supervisor or manager's review and electronic authorization.

Exempt employees are required to list only time off from their regular work schedule. When an exempt employee takes time off during the pay period, time must be listed and authorized by both the employee and the supervisor or manager.

Employees must be thorough in the completion of their timesheets. Their pay will be based on this documentation. Timesheets must be authorized by noon on the specified due date in order for Human Resources to process payroll. A schedule of timesheet due dates is published annually and is found on University of Colorado Medicine's intranet.

Hours of Work and Attendance

Employees are expected to work their shifts as assigned to them by their immediate Supervisor or Manager. Any employee absent from work, whether intermittent, recurrent or extended, affects University of Colorado Medicine's operations and results in a costly business expense. Therefore, University of Colorado Medicine maintains structured absenteeism and punctuality practices. If an employee is unable to report to work, he/she will be required to contact his/her Supervisor or Manager. Acceptable contact methods (email, text, phone, etc.) should be discussed with his/her Supervisor/Manager in advance. An employee's department will further establish attendance guidelines and expectations with him/her.

Meal Periods – Non-exempt employees who work five or more consecutive hours will be provided at least one unpaid 30-minute meal break. During the break, employees will be relieved of all duties and permitted to pursue personal activities. If the nature of the business activity or other circumstances exist that makes an uninterrupted meal break impracticable, the employee will be allowed to consume an on-duty meal without any loss of time or compensation. This may only be done with prior approval from management. Employees should speak with their Supervisor or Manager to obtain scheduling and approval of their meal period.

Breaks – Non-exempt employees will also be permitted a 10-minute rest break for every four hours of work. Breaks should be scheduled in the middle of the work period insofar as practicable and must be paid. Employees should speak with their Supervisor or Manager to obtain scheduling and approval of break periods.

Other than approved medical leaves, University of Colorado Medicine does not generally grant unpaid time-off for additional personal leave time. Employees should manage their Paid Accumulated Leave (PAL) and Extended Illness (EI) accounts conservatively and maintain sufficient balances for future time-off needs.

Primarily, PAL time should be scheduled and approved in advance with the employee's Supervisor or Manager. Unscheduled time off may be disruptive to the business and should be limited. Unscheduled time-off will be monitored. Excessive unscheduled time off will not be tolerated outside of approved leaves.
